"I'M LOOKING FOR A WILD MAN"

ARE YOU THE GUY FOR HER?

HE KILLED HIS WIFE WITH A BOWLING BALL — THEN USED THE SAME BALL TO BOWL A PERFECT GAME

SHE WALKED THE STREETS FOR AN HOUR — WITH A KNIFE IN HER BACK

EUNICE KUHLANE only flinched when the six-inch blade was plunged into her.

Girl Didn't Realize Boyfriend Had Stabbed Her

By Bill Underwood

Eunice Kuhlane, 23, climaxed a violent argument she was having with her boyfriend by storming out of his apartment.

Eunice flinched when the man gave her a sharp parting slap on the back, but she kept on walking.

SHE CONTINUED WALKING FOR AN HOUR, WITHOUT REALIZING THE "SLAP" WAS ACTUALLY A STAB — AND A DAGGER WAS BURIED TO THE HILT IN THE SMALL OF HER BACK.

LEONARD GABATA stabbed his girlfriend when she said she was leaving him for good.

Johannesburg, South Africa, police said that Eunice had gone steady with Leonard Gabata, an unemployed busboy, for almost a year.

The couple got along well, police said, until Gabata, 31, started two-timing Eunice with an 18-year-old girl.

One afternoon, Eunice told Gabata she knew about his infidelity, and that she was leaving him for good.

Gabata, infuriated, plunged six inches of honed steel into Eunice's back.

But as is occasionally the case with a person suddenly wounded, Eunice failed to realize she'd been stabbed. She wandered the streets aimlessly, trying to regain her composure after the argument.

Strangely enough, nobody among the throng of afternoon shoppers noticed the dagger shaft protruding grotesquely from Eunice's body.

But when she walked into a small restaurant for coffee — one of the customers, Gideon Marakali, a husky longshoreman, gasped in horror.

An ambulance was called, and Eunice was rushed to a hospital where the blade was removed.

"She's a lucky girl," a doctor said later.

"If an amateur had pulled that knife out she'd probably have bled to death.

"As it is, she'll be out of the hospital in a week."

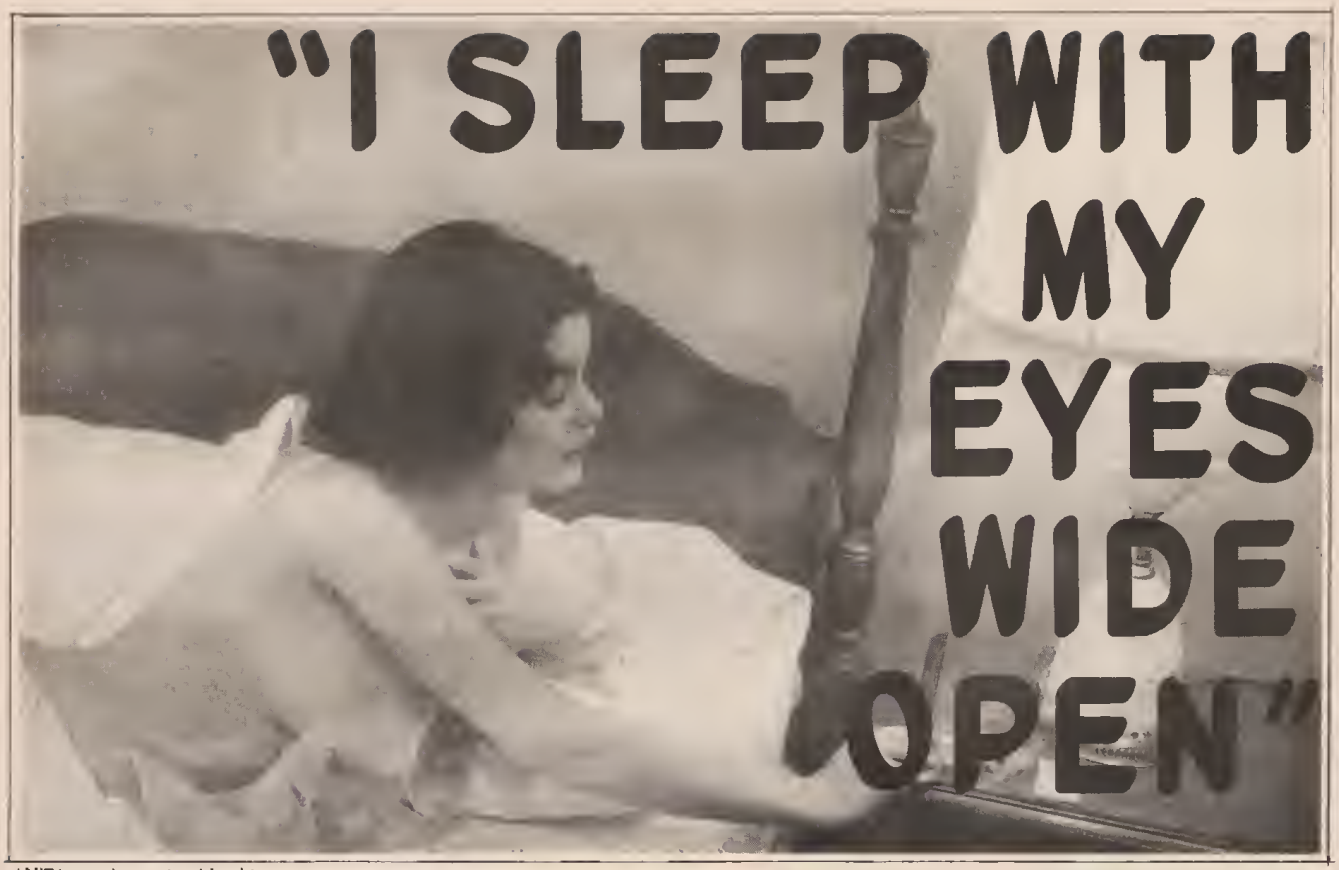

Eunice told police her story, and Gabata was arrested.

Last April 19, he was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon, and sentenced to two years in prison.

EUNICE WAS RUSHED to a hospital.

"I SLEEP WITH MY EYES WIDE OPEN"

ANITA may have missed her big chance by sleeping when a movie producer tried to talk to her.

"My Friends Think There's Something Spooky About Me"

ANITA LONDON doesn't know why she snoozes the way she does.

By Joseph Shorte

"I suppose you've heard of people who sleep with one eye open so no one can put anything over on them," said model Anita London.

"WELL, I SLEEP WITH BOTH EYES WIDE OPEN."

We were talking to Anita, a 22-year-old brunette, between frugs at a jumping discotheque.

"I'm not kidding," she said in a sweet but rather loud voice, trying to be heard over the brassy music.

"It started when I was about 14 years old.

"I didn't believe it at first, but my mother proved it by snapping a picture of me one night when I was fast asleep.

"I've asked a few doctors about it, but no one has been able to tell me why.

"Not that it bothers me any. I don't really care . . . but it sure seems to bother a lot of my friends.

"They think there's something spooky about me.

"My little quirk has only hurt me once, as far as I know.

"I was at a cocktail party one night, and was bored stiff. I decided to grab a little sbuteye.

"So I went off into a dark corner and took a nap—with my eyes open, of course.

"One of my friends told me later that a famous movie producer came over to me and started to chat. But I was sleeping so soundly, I didn't hear a word.

"He got very angry and walked away from me.

"I guess maybe I blew a chance to break into pictures.

"Well, so it goes.

"But nothing can break me of my odd sleeping habit.

"I suppose I'll be this way until the day I die — and probably even then, I won't close my eyes."

Academy Award Winner Lee ("Cat Ballou") Marvin Says...

"I'm A Damn Good Actor Because I'm A Tough Hombre"

"I Think Like A Man... And I Act Like A Man"

By Olga Wisnoski

"The trouble with movies nowadays," said Lee Marvin, "is that too many pretty-boy actors are playing the romantic leads.

"Most of those guys wouldn't know what to do with a dame off the screen if their lives depended on it.

"So their love scenes on screen are a big laugh.

"BUT ME, I'M A PRETTY TOUGH HOMBRE IN REAL LIFE — AND KNOW MY WAY AROUND WOMEN — WHICH IS WHY I'M SUCH A DAMN GOOD ACTOR."

Marvin was sounding off on what makes him tick during a break on the London, England, set of his latest film, "The Dirty Dozen."

"It took me a long time to get where I am," he said. "Some people used to say I was a big clod without the sensitivity to be a good actor.

"They think sensitivity means 'swishing' all over the place, making pretty speeches for the movie magazines.

"I say to hell with that idea! You don't catch me swishing — on or off the screen.

"I'm a man . . . I think like a man and I act like a man.

"The idea of playing a love scene is something that really intrigues me.

"Give me a romantic lead and, brother, you'll believe my performance.

"A lot of guys they've got playing opposite good-looking chicks don't know what the hell they're doing.

"Like they need a map and a little instruction booklet.

"Not me, baby! I've been there in real life — I know my way around.

"Because I'm like that naturally, I don't shove anything phony down my audiences' throats.

"The idea that a 'he-man' can't be sensitive went out with the stone age."

"SOME PEOPLE used to say I was a big clod," according to Lee Marvin, "without the sensitivity to be a good actor. Were they wrong!"

HE KILLS WIFE WITH BOWLING BALL —

Then Uses It To Bowl A Perfect Game

THIS BOWLING BALL was the weapon used to murder Alice Slowacki.

ROMAN SLOWACKI became enraged when his wife called him a "bowling bum."

ALICE SLOWACKI and her husband seemed to get along well for a while after their marriage.

By Tony Mancino

Roman Slowacki, 49, became upset when his wife, Alice, tried to stop him from going bowling.

And when he heard her refer to him as a "bowling bum," Slowacki flew into a rage.

He picked up his bowling ball . . . and brought it down full-force on top of Alice's head, killing her instantly.

THEN SLOWACKI TOOK THE BALL TO A NEIGHBORHOOD ALLEY — AND USED IT TO BOWL A PERFECT GAME.

"The whole thing was beyond belief," a Dover, W. Va., cop said later.

"The guy had been a bowling fiend for 30 years — but it took a murder for him to roll his first 300 game."

Slowacki, a coal miner, had married his 45-year-old wife less than two years before he killed her.

Until he'd met Alice, a waitress in a coffee shop, Slowacki had been a confirmed bachelor.

"I liked her right off," Slowacki later told the police.

"But I didn't agree to marry her until she promised not to interfere with my private life.

"I didn't want any woman telling me when to come and when to go."

During the first year of their marriage, Slowacki and his wife seemed to get along well.

Three or four evenings each week, Slowacki would go to the local bowling alley.

Alice didn't complain about this in the beginning.

"But then she started calling herself a 'bowling widow,' and said she was tired of being home alone," Slowacki recalled.

"And when she began whining that I should stay home and watch television with her, I saw red.

"I knew I'd made a mistake in marrying her.

"Her nagging started to affect my score, and I could tell the boys on my team were getting fed up.

"The night she grabbed my shoulder, shouted that I was a 'bowling bum' and ordered me to stay home was just too much.

"I had the ball in my hand, and I cracked her over the head with it.

"I looked at her lying there, cold dead, and I knew I was washed up.

"But I decided to get in one last night of bowling and a few beers before giving myself up. So I wiped off the ball and went down to the alley.

"And damned if I didn't bowl a clean 300 game right off the bat."

Slowacki turned himself into the police later that night.

Last May 3, he pleaded guilty to a charge of first degree murder. Judge Marlo Wynczski sentenced him to 20 years to life in prison.

"MY WILD PARTY BROUGHT THE HOUSE DOWN."

By Vincent Dwyer

"I've thrown a lot of wild parties in my life," said model Satria Pasha.

"But the shindig I held at my new beach house a couple of weeks ago topped them all.

"IT LITERALLY BROUGHT THE HOUSE DOWN."

We were talking to Satria in the living room of her beautifully-furnished apartment.

"A couple of months ago," she explained, "I put out $500 for a rickety old beach house.

"It was really an awful mess, with rotting timbers and holes in the walls. But I was sure I could get it into shape.

"I decided to throw one of those parties where you invite a lot of people out to a place and let them fix it up for you.

"I would supply the refreshments and the tools — they supply the work. Sounds like a great idea, right?

"So I sent invitations to about 50 friends; we all met on the highway and drove out together.

"I thought my plan was going to work perfectly — everyone was just bursting with energy.

"AS USUAL," said Satria (right), "I was left to clean up the mess."

TWICE A DAY — A HORSE COMES CLOMPING THROUGH THEIR BEDROOM

From JACQUES RONET, Paris

Every morning and every evening at the same time, six days a week, there's a commotion in Paul LeClerc's house.

A HORSE GOES CLOMPING THROUGH HIS LIVING ROOM, BEDROOM AND KITCHEN.

LeClerc lives with his wife, Marianne, and their two sons, Jacques, 8, and Pierre, 7.

He owns an 18-year-old white mare named Boul. The horse pulls LeClerc's vegetable cart around the streets of Loos, France.

LeClerc makes just enough money to support his family, so he can't afford rent for a stable.

At the rear of his ground-floor apartment, though, is a small garden, just the right size for a horse. But it's surrounded by other houses, and there's only one way to get to it — through LeClerc's apartment.

So after work every evening, LeClerc leads Boul through the living room, down a narrow hallway, through the kitchen and the bedroom—and into the rear garden.

Each morning, it's the same routine in reverse.

"The arrangement does cause some problems," LeClerc said.

"Often there's quite a mess for my wife to clean up. The horse isn't housebroken, you know.

"And my boys have learned never to leave toys where they might get stepped on.

"But Boul's a good horse—she doesn't make too much noise."

PAUL LeCLERC leads his horse, Boul, onto the street in the morning. LeClerc's wife and kids observe the operation.

THE HOUSE DOWN - FOR REAL"

"I set up a big table in the living room and piled it with sandwiches, potato salad and two huge kegs of beer.

"Somebody had brought along a portable record player, and in no time at all things were really swinging.

"Guys were pounding away with hammers and sanding down the walls. The girls were painting and ripping up rotten floorboards.

"I was proud of myself for having had such a great idea —I could see the place was really whipping into shape.

"But suddenly one of the guys, Harry I think it was, decided to make sure the roof was sound.

"By this time, though, Harry was a little drunk. So a few other fellows decided to climb up there with him — just to make sure he didn't get hurt.

"Well, before long, there were about 15 guys standing on the roof, looking around for weak spots.

"They found them, all right.

"All of a sudden there was a loud, creaking noise — and then the whole house began to sway.

"The fellows on the roof jumped off, and everybody else charged out of the place.

"We all stood about 30 yards away . . . and gasped as my beach house collapsed.

"And that was that. The guests told me how sorry they were, then packed up and went home.

"And as usual, the hostess was left to clean up the mess."

SATRIA INVITED her friends to lend a hand.

"First There Was A Creaking Noise ...Then The Roof Caved In"

"I WAS PROUD of myself for having thought of a great idea," Satria said.

SATRIA PASHA had paid $500 for a rickety old beach house.

When You Go To The Beach This Summer...

WATCH OUT FOR DEADLY SHARKS!

More And More Swimmers Are Being Attacked By Vicious Man-Eaters — And Nothing Can Stop It

SHARKS TORE huge chunks of flesh from the leg of this 15-year-old California boy. He did not survive.

THIS IS ALL that was left of a victim of a shark attack.

By John R. Franklin

Seaside resort towns are spending millions of dollars each year — but not for new cabins or tourist attractions.

They are spending the money on research to help destroy a growing menace which is threatening to bankrupt them.

MAN-EATING SHARKS ARE INCREASING THEIR VICIOUS ATTACKS ON HELPLESS VACATIONERS — AND SCARING PEOPLE AWAY FROM THE BEACHES.

The sharks are attacking swimmers, skindivers and even people wading in shallow water near beaches.

The viciousness of the sharks is best illustrated by the case of a 15-year-old boy attacked while swimming 50 feet from a Northern California beach.

A man fishing on the beach witnessed the attack and leaped into the water to help.

Two lifeguards rowing to the rescue saw the fisherman and the youth go under with screams of pain.

The boy popped to the surface as his blood swirled in the water around him.

By the time the lifeguards got to the spot — less than five minutes after the boy was attacked — he was dead.

Sharks has ripped off one leg and bitten buge chunks of flesh from his body.

Then one of the lifeguards spotted the fisherman's arm just below the surface. He reacbed and pulled on it.

He almost fainted when he saw the victim.

Two arms, hanging from a beadless and bloody skeleton, were all that remained.

The deaths led to the beach's being closed to swimmers.

Similar scenes are repeated hundreds of times all over America's coastlines.

Businessmen are feeling the pinch of lost tourist dollars.

Many hope they can last another year without going bankrupt.

Maybe by then, science will have found a way to deal with sharks.

America isn't the only country troubled with shark attacks.

Australia is plagued by whale sbarks wbo don't have to chew up a man.

These 30-foot monsters weigh about five tons each and with their five-foot-wide moutbs, they can gulp down a victim without bothering to chew.

Science is fighting — and losing — the battle of the sharks.

Marine biologists don't know why so many more sharks are attacking humans.

Some believe that warm currents are bringing the beasts closer to tbe shores.

Otber experts claim the increase in water sports is responsible. More people swimming and skindiving create a tempting attraction for the always-hungry shark.

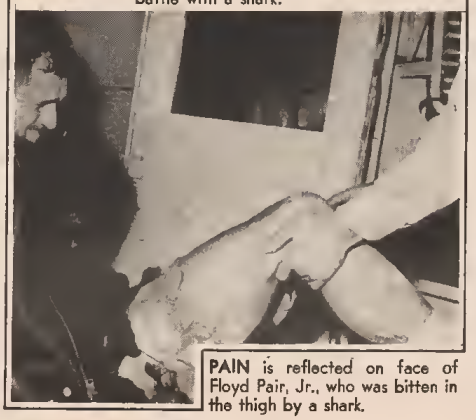

But whatever the reason, beach towns are frantically looking for something to drive sharks back out to the open sea.

But chemical repellants, high frequency sound waves, nets and everything else science has tried has failed.

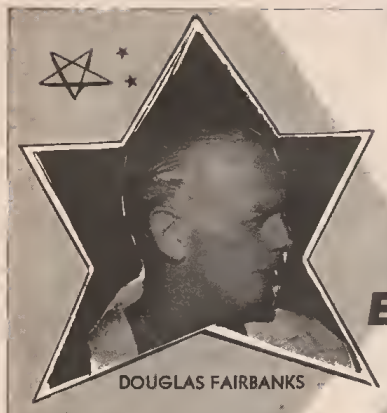

It seems tbe only thing marine biologists have learned about sharks is — how vicious they are.

ALBERT KOLGER, JR., 18, receives attention after his losing battle with a shark.

PAIN is reflected on face of Floyd Pair, Jr., who was bitten in the thigh by a shark.

Don ("Get Smart") Adams Confesses:

"I'M 10 TIMES CLUMSIER THAN MAXWELL SMART"

DON ADAMS says he gets a strange look from his wife every time he puts salt in his coffee.

WITH CO-STAR BARBARA FELDON, Adams rehearses a bumbling scene for his TV show, "Get Smart."

By Olga Wisnoski

"My role as the most bungling spy in the world is a lot of fun," said Don Adams, star of NBC-TV's "Get Smart" series.

"But it has its embarrassing side, too.

"THE THING IS, IT'S TOO CLOSE TO REALITY FOR ME. IN REAL LIFE, I'M SO CLUMSY — I MAKE MAXWELL SMART LOOK LIKE A SMOOTH OPERATOR BY COMPARISON."

We were talking to Adams at P. J. Clarke's, a New York City saloon favored by the show business crowd.

"This will give you an idea of what I mean," he whispered.

"That fellow at the end of the bar represents a big publicity outfit — and I should go over and say hello.

"But I'll be damned if I can remember his name."

Adams shook his head wryly, and carefully picked up his stein of beer.

"If I'd picked that thing up my usual way, chances are I'd have spilled it," he said. "I'm 10 times clumsier than Smart.

"I've been an absent-minded type, too, ever since I was a boy, and it's getting worse with age.

"Believe it or not, the other day I carried out the garbage — and dumped it in the back of my car.

"I drive my wife, Dorothy, crazy.

"When I do things like run out of gas or put salt in my coffee, she gives me a strange look and says:

" 'You really are Maxwell Smart, aren't you?'

"But I've actually got nothing to kick about.

"Smart may be a stumble-bum — but he's making me a nice pile of money.

"Let's drink a toast to him."

Adams reached for his beer, fumbled — and sent it foaming into our lap.

"I NEED A WILD MAN TO KEEP ME IN LINE"

By Vincent Dwyer

"Most girls seem to go for the cleon-cut, smooth-talking, city-slicker type of man," said Gaby Rougier.

"But I prefer hulking, rugged backwoodsmen, the sort of guys who don't hide their virility.

"I don't mind being treated rough . . . in fact, I kind of like it.

"IN OTHER WORDS, WHAT I NEED IS A REAL WILD MAN — SOMEONE WHO CAN KEEP ME IN LINE."

Gaby, a 22-year-old model, discussed her attraction for strong, silent "he-men" during an interview in her rustically-furnished apartment.

"I've always been one for the great outdoors," she said.

"My dad was a logger, so when I was a kid we lived near lumber camps most of the time.

"It was a great life. My boyfriends were all young lumberjacks.

"For nearly a year, I went with a guy named Gus.

"He was a burly six-footer with a big black beard.

"He was strong as a bull, and I learned pretty quickly the thrill of being dominated by a man. If I stepped out of line, Gus knocked me right back in place.

"When Gus wanted something, he didn't ask for it— he took it."

Gaby leaned back, lit a cigarette and, for a moment, seemed lost in some pleasant memory.

"Then I got the idea of becoming a model," she continued, "so I came to the city.

"I wonder whether I did the right thing.

"I like my job and my apartment and all — but I can't find a man who'll treat me the way I need to be treated.

"These city guys — they're all such pipsqueaks.

"They worry more about the crease in their trousers than scoring with a girl.

"Now, Gus and the other boys I used to know were mean, wild and shaggy as hell.

"They didn't worry about the way they looked. What they cared about was action.

"And when it comes to action, these city boys really bug me.

"It's always the sneaky, soft little paw under the table.

"None of them ever makes a strong, masculine move.

"Gus and I, we'd go for walks in the woods. If he wanted to give me a kiss or what have you, he'd give it.

"If I resisted, he'd practically break my arm.

"I got used to that style as a very young girl, and I haven't gotten over it yet.

"The only thing I didn't like about Gus was, he wasn't too smart.

"I like a fellow to dominate me mentally, too.

"I guess what I need is my scruffy, tough lumberjack kind of guy . . . with some brains thrown in.

"Maybe the only way I'll ever be satisfied is to take one of these smart little city slickers with a college education — and give him a few lessons on how to treat a woman."

GABY ROUGIER likes a fellow to dominate her both physically and mentally.

GABY used to date a burly six-footer with a big black beard — and she's never forgotten him.

"Maybe He's Near-Sighted" — Puzzled Official Says

ZOO MONKEY KEEPS SWIPING VISITORS' EYEGLASSES

By John R. Franklin

When an attendant let Billy, a young zoo monkey, look through a pair of eyeglasses, he didn't know what he was starting.

NOW NO ONE IN GLASSES AT THE ZOO IS SAFE ANYMORE.

The trouble began one day when the attendant went behind the wire to clean out the monkey cage.

Playfully, Billy swung down and grabbed the attendant's glasses.

Then he put them on his own nose.

BILL ENJOYED WEARING THEM SO MUCH, HE WOULDN'T GIVE THEM BACK.

From that day on, Billy began to collect spectacles.

Any near-sighted person coming too close to the cage had his glasses snatched away.

Scores of people complained to the Kirby, England, zoo officials.

Finally, signs were put up to warn the public about Billy.

One sign faded so much that people had to lean close to the monkey cage to see what it said.

WHEN THEY DID, BILLY JUST COLLECTED MORE GLASSES.

A new sign was put up — and attendants hope they've finally solved the problem.

"I don't know why Billy likes grabbing glasses so much," a puzzled official said.

"MAYBE HE'S JUST NEAR-SIGHTED."

BILLY just loves to put on spectacles.

"I MAKE MONEY THE EASY WAY-- BY GAMBLING"

She Reads Scratch Sheets Instead Of Fashion Magazines

JUTHA gets a kick out of playing poker or shooting craps.

By Richard Karlin

"There are thousands of ways for a person to make a living," said Jutha Goz. "The trouble with most of them, though, is that you have to work for your money. "THAT'S WHY I'M SEEKING MY FORTUNE THE EASY WAY — BY GAMBLING."

We were talking to Jutha, a 24-year-old beauty, over watercress salad sandwiches and carrot juice at a neighborhood health bar.

"Sure, I model," said Jutha, "but I certainly don't do it for the money anymore.

"I do it to help out a good friend of mine — he's a photographer.

"I pick up the real cash at the track or playing poker or shooting craps.

"I was fascinated by so-called games of chance, even as a kid.

"My dad used to throw card games every week, and he always let me sit on his lap while he played. He said I was a good luck charm.

"But don't get the idea that luck is all it takes. One thing that's more important — is skill.

"That's why I read scratch sheets instead of fashion magazines.

"In fact, starting next week, I'm taking a course in higher mathematics — just so I can figure the odds better."

Jutha paused to order another glass of carrot juice, which she drinks to keep her eyes sharp. She took a sip, then continued.

"I must admit," she said, "my wagering ways sometimes get me in trouble with men.

"You know, just last week, I thought I'd met the guy for me when he suggested we go out to the race track on a date.

"But as it turned out, he wanted to teach me how to bet.

"I tried to tell him I knew more about it than he did, but he wouldn't let me get a word in edgewise.

"So I let him go $75 in the hole before I placed one bet and bailed him out.

"But do you think he was man enough to thank me? Not on your life.

"He was so embarrassed, he took me home as fast as he could, and he hasn't called me since.

"Things like this have happened to me again and again.

"Sometimes I think there's a lot of truth in that old saying — 'Lucky in cards, unlucky in love.'"

"SURE, I MODEL," says Jutha, "but I certainly don't do it for money."

★★★★★★★★ Ginger Rogers Speaks Her Mind: ★★★★★★★★

"ROCK 'N ROLL DISGUSTS ME — IT'S JUST PLAIN JUNK"

By George Rapp

"A lot of people poke fun at the movie musicals Fred Astaire and I made back in the 1930's," said Ginger Rogers.

"The funny thing is, most of these so-called critics are the same people who think rock 'n roll is great.

"WELL, LET ME TELL YOU — ROCK 'N ROLL DISGUSTS ME. IT'S PLAIN JUNK."

"Give Me The Good Old Days When Words And Music Meant Something"

We were visiting Ginger backstage at New York City's St. James Theater, where she stars in the hit musical, "Hello Dolly."

"What those jerks say about the old films being corny," Ginger went on, "is nonsense, and it makes me angry.

"Sure, times have changed and we're living in a different world. But that doesn't mean the good things from the past have to be thrown away.

"Fred and I used to raise the spirits of our audiences. When people came to see us, they'd leave the movie house singing and whistling.

"The songs had lovely melodies, and the words carried real meaning.

"That's a heck of a lot more than you can say for today's rock 'n roll garbage."

Ginger paused as a backstage assistant came in with a huge basket of roses . . . a token of appreciation, from a man who'd been a fan of hers "back when," as the accompanying card said.

"It does my heart good to know I'm still some people's favorite," she declared.

"Those horrible 'beat' groups will be forgotten in no time . . . and I think they deserve it.

"What does all that noise mean? Nothing, the way I feel about it.

"You can't sing to it, and you certainly can't dance to it. All you can do is leap around like an ape to it.

"I've been around kids, and I've watched them responding to rock 'n roll.

"It doesn't make sense the way they shriek and carry on. They never really listen at all.

"And those shaggy horribly-dressed performers are enough to make a well-bred person sick to his stomach.

"I can't wait for the day when popular music is put back in the hands of people like Fred Astaire and myself."

GINGER, back in 1934, was the darling of moviegoers.

GINGER ROGERS thinks music and lyrics should have meaning.

She Got Her Kicks By Luring Hubby Into Fights

MARGARET MOFFATT admitted she goaded her husband, Ian.

From ANDREW CARSTAIRS, London

Margaret Moffatt was a troublemaker.

She often would call up her estranged husband and invite him to her apartment.

Then she'd ask another man to show up at the same time — knowing her husband would get into a fight with him.

"I ENJOYED WATCHING MEN FIGHT OVER ME," SHE ADMITTED LATER.

Her game went on for several months. Then it ended one night when she called her 31-year-old husband, Ian, and asked him over.

Margaret also invited another man she had met the day before.

But the other man never showed up.

So when her husband arrived, Margaret pointed through the window at a slightly built stranger walking down the street. She said the man had been pestering her.

"It was really funny," Margaret later testified.

"My husband crept up behind this little man — whom I'd never seen before — and punched him in the back of the head.

"The man fell on the sidewalk. Ian sbouted at him to leave me alone, then punched him in the stomach."

At that moment, a York, England, policeman passed by.

Ian Moffatt was arrested and charged witb assault.

At his trial, Margaret admitted she had tricked him —and that she bad been goading him into figbts for months.

Despite her testimony, a panel of judges found Moffatt guilty and sentenced him to six months in jail.

No charges were filed against Margaret.

"ELECTRICITY SCARES THE BEJEEPERS OUT OF ME"

By Joseph Shorte

"I hardly ever vacuum my apartment," said model Cherie Benay, "and I refuse to make toast in a pop-up toaster.

"It's not that I'm lazy or that I don't like toast.

"THE TRUTH IS — ELECTRICITY SCARES THE BEJEEPERS OUT OF ME."

We were talking to Cherie, a robust 21-year-old brunette, across a candle-lit table in her apartment.

"That's why I don't have the lights on now," she told us.

"I'm not stupid, and deep-down I know they're perfectly safe.

"But it's the moment of switching them on that terrifies me."

We assured Cherie that we actually preferred the subtle glow of candles to the harsh glare of the ceiling light.

"One time when I was a kid, I got the shock of my life," she continued, "and I've never gotten over it.

"I plugged in my big brother's electric trains while my hands were wet — and the jolt I got knocked me colder than a frozen codfish.

"From that day on, I don't even like to turn on a radio.

"I can't say I never use electricity — that would be pretty hard these days.

"But I avoid it whenever possible—to the point where some of my friends think I'm a little loony."

We asked Cherie how she manages to operate her TV and phonograph.

"Oh, I'll look at television all night," she replied, "as long as somebody is with me to turn it on and switch channels.

"You may not believe it, but even static electricity scares me . . . that's why I don't have rugs on the floor anymore.

"A boyfriend once shuffled across a carpet on a cold night and gave me a peck on the cheek.

"It generated a terrible spark.

"I jumped about six feet in the air, then dropped to the floor in a dead faint.

"I've become so obsessed about electricity, I recently went to a psychiatrist for advice.

"Do you know what he had the nerve to suggest?

"Electric shock treatment!"

CHERIE BENAY doesn't even like to turn on a radio.

BOYFRIEND GAVE HER A FAT LIP — BUT SHE MANAGED TO POSE FOR CHEESECAKE PHOTOS ANYWAY

By Vincent Dwyer

"My boyfriend didn't like the idea of my posing for cheesecake photos.

"SO WHEN HE LEARNED I HAD AN ASSIGNMENT TO MODEL FOR PINUPS, HE BELTED ME IN THE MOUTH."

That's how Marya Linero summed up her troubles during an interview in a Los Angeles photographer's studio.

"I'm trying to get into the movies," said Marya, whose swollen and cut lip hardly detracted from her beauty.

"But it's not easy, and there have been long periods when I was out of work.

"My boyfriend, Johnny, didn't mind, though. He makes good money and was willing to help me out.

"But I want to be financially independent.

"So when I got an offer to pose for some cheesecake photos, I took it.

"In addition to the money, there was always a chance some producer or director would spot my picture and give me a role in a movie.

"But when Johnny found out about it, he was furious, and he made me promise not to do it anymore.

"Well, I kept the promise — for a while.

"But I really hated to ask him for money, so I broke the promise.

"I posed for a photographer whose pictures appeared in foreign magazines only, and managed to keep it a secret from Johnny.

"But the other day, a friend of Johnny's saw my picture in a French magazine and showed it to him.

"He really hit the ceiling.

"Johnny came over that night and began yelling at me, calling me all kinds of awful names.

"I'll fix it so you won't be able to pose for pictures like that again,' he said.

"Then I saw his fist coming toward me — and wham! I saw stars.

"Johnny went storming out the door.

"A few hours later, the best cheesecake photographer in town called and asked me if I could pose for him the next day.

"Just to spite Johnny, I told him, 'sure.' But I explained that I had a swollen lip which might show in the pictures.

"'Don't worry about that,' the photographer said. 'We'll take care of it.'

"And he did, too. He managed to shoot a whole bunch of pictures — in all of which my lip was covered.

"As for Johnny, I haven't seen him since.

"But I'll see him pretty soon in court — when he defends himself against the assault charge I've filed against him."

MARYA LINERO, in spite of her swollen mouth, showed up for her modeling assignment.

Beauty Contest Winner's Dilemma...

By Robert P. Shaw

Danielle Negre wan a beauty contest recently, and was offered an attractive mavie contract. But she may turn the offer down in arder to remain at her present jab.

DANIELLE IS AN EMBALMER AT A FUNERAL PARLOR — AND SHE'S IN LOVE WITH HER WORK.

"I know it sounds strange," said 22-year-old Danielle after being voted Miss Champs Elysee in Paris, France.

"But I think I have a good future, and my boss agrees.

"I've invested a lot of time and money in my education, and I wouldn't like to throw it all away.

"I had to go to an undertakers' school, you know.

"Besides, I really enjoy my work.

"It gives me peace of mind.

"Some nights I have to work very late at the funeral parlor . . . you never know when a rush job is going to come in.

"I guess most girls would be scared half to death.

"But not me. I turn on the radio and listen to rock and roll.

"I whistle and sing while I work — it's very peaceful.

"You see, I've always wanted to open up a funeral parlor of my own.

"And all that money might help me to achieve my dream much quicker."

"Most moviemakers I've run into had only one thing on their minds — sex.

"And I can tell you right now, I'm not the kind of girl who'll sell her body to some big producer.

"So I probably wouldn't get very far in the movies, even if I did accept the contract."

DANIELLE NEGRE can't make up her mind.

SHOULD SHE ACCEPT A MOVIE CONTRACT -- OR KEEP HER JOB AS AN EMBALMER?

"Home-a-Minute" Kit

If you're thinking of buying, building or remodeling a home, office or other place of business, adding an attic flat, extra bedroom, bath, den, studio, welting room, garage or patio, you'll save yourself many dollars and hours with the Home-A-Minute Kit. It contains dozens of fiber partitions, doors, windows, kitchen cabinets, all made to 1/8" scale, drawn as blueprints. Includes a 65-page handbook to help you estimate actual costs, obtain financing, or even become your own contractor! Gives you a perfect three dimensional idea of how everything will look, how furniture and fixtures will fit. Shows how passageways and traffic lanes should be properly measured. Helps you in visualizing architect's drawings, and select the proper materials. Enables you to build, dismantle, and rearrange any number of floor plans, large or small, to fit your pocketbook. Tells how an imaginative, even daring plan, need cost no more than a conventional arrangement. Lets you "live" in your new home before you actually build it, enabling you to avoid making costly changes after you really build! May be used for single or multiple story planning. Furniture may be simulated by using little blocks of balsa wood, styro-foam, or cardboard (not included), to help plan room arrangements. The white fiber partitions may be painted any color desired, to aid in planning color schemes. Takes all the mystery out of building costs. And it's fun too, designing, building and decorating in fiber board, before investing any big money in the real thing!

Mystery Slayer Struck 3 Times

THE CALLER SAID: "I'M A FRIEND OF BATMAN" — AND TOLD COPS WHERE TO FIND GIRLS' BODIES

THE REAL BATMAN and Robin don't know the killer's identity any more than the cops do.

From ANDREW CARSTAIRS, London

Three girls have been slain in Glasgow, Scotland, within four months — and police believe they were killed by the same man.

IN EACH CASE, THE MURDERER TELEPHONED THE COPS AND TOLD THEM WHERE THE BODY WAS — THEN SAID HE WAS "A FRIEND OF BATMAN."

Last March 23, police received a call from a man who announced:

"You'll find the body of Carole Jones in the cellar of a vacant house at 24 Mac-Watson Lane.

"I killed her."

"Who are you?" asked the cop who took the call.

"Just say I'm a friend of Batman and Rohin," the man replied, and hung up.

Officers sped to the house and found the body.

Carole — a 26-year-old secretary — had been strangled with a length of clothesline.

Detectives found no clues which would reveal the killer's identity.

About three weeks later — last April 11 — authorities received another call.

Again, a man told them where they could find the body of a girl — and he identified himself as a friend of Batman.

This time, the corpse of a 16-year-old high school student was found in a clump of bushes besides a lonely road outside of town.

She had also been strangled.

Then a third killing was reported.

The police were tipped off by Batman's "friend" once again. In a hotel room, officers came upon the body of a 24-year-old school teacher.

She, too, had been strangled with a piece of clothesline.

The killer is still at large —and the police have no idea who he can be. The only thing they're sure of is, the "real" Batman and Robin couldn't possibly have a friend like this.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

It takes a pretty big girl to fill Anita Ekberg's D cup, but starlet Diane Noble has all the essential qualifications. When Anita got too fat to fill most of her dresses, she put them up for sale in a London, England, re-sale shop. As with Cinderella's glass slippers, lots of gals tried to fit into the duds, but all failed. Then Diane walked in. No alterations were necessary, and she walked off with the Ekberg wardrobe.

Barbara Nichols split up with Dick Peabody because she didn't approve of some of the words Dick was trying to teach to Minnie, Barbara's pet parrot.

What's the real low down behind the hot feud between Robert Mitchum and John Wayne? Despite what Hollywood insiders say, their differences weren't started by how they approached their roles in the new flick, "Eldorado." It was politics. John is a conservative Republican, while Bob is a Democrat. And they can't see eye to eye on Ronald Reagan, a possible Republican candidate for governor of California. Their political arguments would curl your hair.

Doris Day was so unhappy with her part in the new flick, "Fifth Avenue Folly," she insisted that the entire script be overhauled. Doris said the male lead's role was much better. So in the new version, the boy's role has become the girl's, and girl's has become the boy's.

Maria Schell, who less than eight years ago could name her own price in both Europe and Hollywood, hasn't made a film in years and is now stony broke. Brother Maximilian Schell has been quietly footing her bills, but he can't do much to help her out of the depression that dogs her these days.

DIANE NOBLE fills the bill.

MIA FARROW

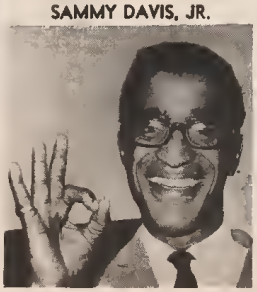

Sammy Davis, Jr., had to have an entire wall taken out of his apartment so that another closet could be built in. Sammy went on a spending spree recently and bought 72 new suits. Added to the hundred or so that he already owns, you can see why something had to give — namely a wall!

JOHN WAYNE AND BOB MITCHUM FEUD BITTERLY OVER POLITICS

Mia Farrow seems to be very interested of late in Michael ("Ipcress File") Caine. Mia's friends can't figure, though, what is making her so unhappy — Frank Sinatra, her hated role in "Peyton Place" or her mom's recent dates with a 23-year-old rabbinical student.

When Carlo Ponti announced to his wife, Sophia Loren, that he intended to grow a beard, Sophia hit the ceiling. In the monumental argument that ensued, Sophia threatened to have all her hair cut off if he did. Carlo managed to achieve a heavy five o'clock shadow before he threw in the sponge. When last seen, he was racing wildly crosstown to get to Sophia's beauty parlor before the hairdresser could get his shears to Sophia's tresses.

While dining in a Paris, France, bistro, Jane Fonda and hubby Roger Vadim had nothing but moo-cow eyes for each other. But during the course of the evening, Jane got more and more annoyed when Roger kept getting up to play a juke-box recording featuring the voice of his former wife, Brigitte Bardot.

THEY CALLED OUT TO NAKED BOY — THEN LEARNED HE WAS A CORPSE ...AND HAD TURNED TO STONE

CLOSE-UP of the petrified body shows its perfectly preserved condition.

By Juan Castillo

Argentina's El Torro Mountain has yielded a grisly secret. IT'S THE BODY OF A BOY WHICH HAS, LITERALLY, TURNED TO STONE.

The strange find was uncovered by Erico Groch and Barnardo Razquin during a climb up the rugged mountain.

"We had not reached the snow level yet," Groch said.

"But it was very cold and dry — just right for preserving anything, including a corpse.

"We saw the boy sitting there and called to him.

"His knees were drawn up to his chest, as if he was trying to keep warm.

"When he failed to answer, we decided he was sleeping.

"He looked so peaceful.

"As we got closer, we saw he was naked—and dead.

"The body was petrified and had become solid rock.

"Scientists later said he died about 400 years ago, and had been sitting there ever since."

So far investigators in San Juan, Argentina, have found no clues to how the boy got there.

They think he was an Inca indian.

The Incas had a great Latin American civilization before European explorers overran their lands.

But the body bore no Inca jewelry or tattoos.

"For all we really know," said one scientist, "he could have come from Mars."

"PHYSICALLY I'M ALL GIRL — BUT AT HEART I'M A TOMBOY"

"I Love Playing Baseball... And Leapfrog Thrills Me"

By Vincent Dwyer

"I suppose I should really try to be more feminine," said model Tsai Chin.

"My friends all tell me women should be soft and gentle.

"But I wouldn't be me if I followed their advice.

PHYSICALLY, I'M ALL GIRL — BUT AT HEART I'M A TOMBOY."

Tsai, 23, and I were talking as we sunbathed, after a vigorous swim together in an ad agency executive's private pool.

"Actually, most girls are tomboys when they're nine or 10," she went on.

"I just never grew out of it.

"To this day, I can't pass a flagpole without wanting to shinny up it.

"I like playing baseball better than dancing, and a game of leapfrog really thrills me."

Tsai suddenly jumped to her feet, grabbed my hand and said:

"Come on, lazybones, let's race around the pool."

TSAI CHIN likes to sprint around a swimming pool.

I was perfectly comfortable where I was, but to uphold my masculine honor, I joined her in a fast sprint. She beat me.

"Wasn't that fun?" Tsai asked breathlessly, as we flopped back down on our blanket.

"It really gets the old blood circulating — makes me feel, you know, alive.

"I hope you're not getting the wrong idea about me.

"Honestly, I'm not one of those odd females who have no interest in boys.

"I love dating and romantic stuff.

"But my boyfriends have to take me the way I am — full of the devil, and just as ready for a game of handball as a hug."
